

The Enemy's Mini Submarine & the East Coast Dream 3-24-26@2:25 AM

"I dreamed again, my lovely Jesus Christ. This is the first dream from last night. The second dream You gave me was about the UAE but that one You told me is not to be shared. Both discern true from You when I try, test and discern them by Your Holy Word. Also by praying in Your great Name Jesus Christ. Now Sweet Holy Ghost Spirit of power don't let me write one word that's not from my lovely Jesus Christ." "I won't Daughter of Zion, now write, for surely this shall come to pass."

This dream began when I found myself looking at a mini size submarine much smaller than the larger ones I have seen pictures of that the US Navy has. Only this submarine is built out of Lego blocks. The colors I saw were yellow, red and pink. I see now that the sub was in a body of water and has now become totally immersed as it travels into the depths below. I realized the smaller size allows it to move easier through the waters. It's fast. It has the ability to travel in waters that normally would be too shallow for a larger submarine to travel. I am observing the movement of this Lego submarine in this dream.

I continued to watch as this little Lego mini submarine began traveling as if it had a course planned and set. Then I noticed there are other of these smaller subs in the water too designed the same but not made out of the yellow, pink and red Lego blocks. I recognized as I observed all these things this little mini submarine was being pointed out for me to watch. Soon I saw other larger ships and submarines in the water also. Some looked like shipping boats with cargo while others looked like military vessels. I noticed some people on the military vessels were trying to pay close attention to all that occurred in the waters above and below. It appeared they were especially interested in trying to locate these little submarines inside the water.

Some of the other tiny submarines besides the Lego one, began dropping something into its depths of the water. I begin counting them. There were four or five being dropped, but even more at times. I understood these were explosive mines being planted into the water. Next, all the mini subs along with the Lego one that was shaped identical to them move together in one direction. I realized now I'm able to see clearly underneath the water. As the other bottoms of the other vessels would come near to the mini submarines' locations, they seemed to stop and somehow bank themselves on underwater land masses until the bigger ship or ships passed over them. I knew this was so they would not be detected and discovered. I could tell by their actions, although it was made out of Lego blocks, this mini submarine was part of this fleet of small subs.

The little submarines begin dispersing and heading in various directions. My eyes stayed focused on the yellow, red, and pink Lego built submarine. To my surprise it left the others then headed out into deeper water. Where it was going I don't know. It stopped during its travels briefly and I saw what appeared as a symbol of a battery that has a lightning bolt on it appear on its top. I know this was for my eyes to see to grant me understanding. This mini size submarine was somehow possibly recharging its power so it must run on some type of rechargeable power such as a battery or electricity since this was a symbol I recognize as when an electronic device is charging when connected to electricity. Maybe I'm just being shown it runs on some type of different power. I'm not sure but it has begun moving once again.

It stopped and I could see land in the distance. It had piers with areas that look possibly like ports and docks with hubs of activity. "Where is this," I asked myself? I still could not see any kind of land identification. Suddenly, out of the ground popped up a very large American flag blowing in the wind. So this is somewhere in America I now know. The mini size submarine has stopped and is sitting still in the waters, which are shallower than what a large submarine would need. "What are they doing? Why are they just sitting there," I asked out loud? The next thing I know I am looking inside of the interior of the small sub, but I don't see very much. What I do see is a man who looks like he was from the Middle East. He yelled out in English and I know somehow it's for me to understand these words. "Allah be praised! Death to the infidels. Launch it!" "Wait! Launch what," I asked in surprised horror?

Once again I am now observing the outside and not the inside of the little mini submarine. I watched as something left the little sub. It's low, in the air and flying fast. To my surprise it looks like a flying ghost. A white ghost made out of a sheet with black eyes. "What is it," I asked out loud? "Why does it look like a ghost?" I saw the words, 'ghost technology,' in black letters appear above the flying ghost as it continued flying fast through the air. I knew somehow it's undetectable. I watched as the flying ghost began splitting into a total of 9 in the air. Each one was speeding quickly to the land where the American flag was flying. It's all happening so very fast. Right before they hit the land, the white sheet-like ghost covers flew off each one and I saw 9 weapons that remind me of rockets, but I'm not sure exactly what they are. They hit the land with the American flag in 9 different locations but still in semi-close proximity. As the weapons were exploding I heard what sounded like a bell tolling and it rang a total of 9 times. Then I awoke.

"Jesus Christ, what does it mean?" "Daughter, what they think is impossible is not. Judgment has come to America-Babylon. She is no longer protected by My hand." "Where is this my Love?" "On the East Coast Daughter but not where the seat of power sits. This is what I've been showing you in so many dreams and visions Daughter of Mine in which you have never stopped seeking Me for My truth. Now you have the final piece of that which you have sought."

"Prepare to go, you have an audience with Me your Saving King. This time has come as darkness descends then lifts. From here on out Daughter, in a way you can understand it these things for the most part shall come speeding upon your world like a train that the controller has lost control of and it's barreling down the tracks of life on Earth at what your world calls breakneck speed Daughter..... The time of the suddenlies has arrived."
