

Lucifer Has Arrived to Rule the World Dream 1-29-26@6:39 AM Shared 1-30-26

I heard these words going into the dream, "Lucifer has arrived. Lucifer has arrived on your world to rule."

In the dream I found myself as a caretaker of a place that had many nice apartments in high-rise apartment buildings. I would see that those who lived in these apartments were settled in with all they needed when they arrived so that all their needs would be met. I knew this going into the dream. I found myself entering one of the highest buildings. It was nicely decorated, clean and well furnished even in the entryway of the building. It has a beautiful massive stairway before me made out of wood. It was highly polished and the banisters were intricately carved. I knew there were new people that had recently moved in on the top highest floor, so I began to climb the stairs going upward. (Their apartment was the front right, top suite-type apartment.)

As I'm making my way up the last set of stairs in which I am about halfway from the top, I heard a noise that made me turn to look to the right. One of the new people's doors was left standing open and I paused momentarily on the steps when I saw a slight movement and noticed a young boy of about 12 years old sitting on the counter. His presence immediately grabbed my attention, because he looked like Spanky from the Little Rascals gang. Spanky, I remembered, was the witty cherub face leader and main schemer of the group.

"Why is he sitting on the counter? I asked myself still not moving from the midway step of the stairs. Then suddenly I saw that he was not alone. They're also with him was a baby, a very young, if not a newborn baby. The baby is wrapped in a light blue blanket but it's laying in what looks like a red and white pattern, quilted duffel bag. It looks like the duffel bag has lots of blankets padding it. I knew somehow that it was a mother that had carried the baby up the steps in the duffel bag to get to the apartment. Why she left the front door open, or left the baby on the counter in the duffel bag, I don't know? Although I didn't see her fully, I knew she was moving around in other parts of the apartment. I sensed her presence.

I saw the baby move suddenly. Somehow I knew the baby was a boy. He rolled over and when he did, he came partially out of the duffel bag. The Spanky looking boy did not move. "The baby is going to fall, he's going to fall," was my thought, so I yelled out still about halfway up the stairs. "Hey, lady, your baby, your baby," trying to get her attention, but she didn't respond, nor come to the room. Neither did the little boy react or even look up at me.

As I was trying to determine if I had time to get up to the top of the stairs before the baby moved again, he moved again. This time the baby rolled out of the bag and fell to the floor. It did not cry or make any sound. Nor did the little boy react even though he had to have seen what had happened. "Hey lady, your baby, your baby has fallen to the floor!" I cried out in alarm.

Then suddenly this very tiny, newborn looking baby quickly flipped himself over onto his stomach, raised his head and pointed at me, just as the mother's, the woman's legs came into view. That's all I could see of her. My mouth hung open in stunned surprise. Then the baby gave me a horrible, evil looking smile.

I heard from the heavens in an audible voice these words, "Lucifer has arrived. Lucifer has arrived on your world to rule. Not as a baby like me, but he has arrived nonetheless. He has arrived and from an elevated position he shall rule."

Then the baby got on its hands and knees still with a horrible grin on his face looking straight at me and he began to stand up. As he stood up, he grew into a man, the man of sin, Emmanuel Macron.

My mouth again was hanging wide open when I heard these final words from the heavens being spoken out loud. "Every occurrence, every situation that happens upon the Earth is brought forth by a travailing process like that of a woman who gives birth to a child. The travailing is over. The labor pains have ceased. The baby is born and now lucifer is to rule this world uncontested as its ruler of mankind for 7 years during the tribulation period on the world. The baby has been born. Lucifer has arrived as ruler for your world. Weep and wail oh world, for this time has come. Lucifer has arrived, daughter, and he has come to rule the world unrestrained." Then I awoke.
