

The Phoenix Beast System Dream 9-8-26@1:07 AM & 7:01 AM Shared 9-12-26

I dreamed the same dream twice in one night, Lord Jesus Christ. My love, please don't let me write one word that's not from You. Holy Ghost Spirit please bring this dream in its entirety back to me as the Word of God tells me in John 14:26 and 1 John 2:27 You will do that have been spoken from Jesus Christ and Father God who are One according to John 10:30. This dream has been discerned by others as well as myself as coming from you Lord Jesus Christ and because it was given twice it is an established dream according to 2 Corinthians 13:1 which speaks of out of the mouth of more than one witness a matter, a word is established and also Genesis 41:32 that speaks of a dream given twice is an established event." "I will help you, Daughter of Zion. Here's the dream you were given. I shall give you the words needed to bring it to a written shareable form." "Thank You dear, dear sweet Holy Ghost Spirit, Friend of mine. I love you." "I love you too, Daughter of Zion."

It began when I found myself in a vast room filled with giant computer data banks. It looks like instead of one super computer like what was at Oak Ridge facilities in Tennessee and still maybe is. I haven't checked on that recently, that it was possibly many. As I looked around I was overwhelmed by how vast the computer system network was. I glanced around again cautiously and realized there's no one in the room with me. "What am I to do?" I asked myself. "Why so many computer systems and data banks for storage? It looks like this computer system is big enough to smoothly run a small country in this room alone." Why these thoughts entered my mind I'm not sure but that's what I was thinking.

I noticed the wall to my left part way down is made of windows. I walked over quickly to the window area to see what was in the next room. In it too I saw more computers and systems, large amounts of data banks that appeared to be. "Lord Jesus Christ, my Love, why are You showing me this?" I asked out loud but no answer came. I walked into the second room I had been observing through the windows of all the other computers, data banks and such like. When I fully entered the room I saw it was just like the other one containing the data banks but in addition this room was larger than the other I just came from.

"What is all this," I asked myself? I was alone in this room as well. I began to notice that some of the units of storage banks were smaller in size in the second room and appeared newer than the last room I just left from, but somehow I knew they contained the same amount or more capability for storage. Although many of these very tall standing data banks were enclosed with a front covering that looks like it's made of metal and was the color of dark sage green, I knew somehow they were used to store the information collected from computers all over the world, through the internet, and by other means. "But what does it all mean Lord Jesus Christ?" I asked out loud and again no response was heard. I felt strongly compelled to enter the room fully and examined further all that I was being shown instead of remaining next to the door. "Holy Ghost Spirit, should I go further?" I asked softly out loud. His swift reply in my mind was, "Yes, Daughter of Zion, please do." "Okay, I will," I said as I cautiously entered more into the room. Although it looked empty, it was an enormous room and there was always a possibility that someone might enter while I'm here. I found myself praying quickly in Jesus Christ's Name that, it wouldn't happen unless it's His perfect will.

As I drew closer to the center of the room where the majority of the data storage units of data banks were, I saw on my right there were computer terminal stations but not like any I've seen before. The keyboards to the computers themselves were made directly into the desk like area. The top is shiny black and the keys to the keyboard are white. The monitors as well were built directly into each station and I realized each seemed to have their own storage bank connected to them so when in use, the information inputted from the terminal went directly into storage. There are several of them in a row with a simple round black stool for someone to sit on which I knew by looking at it was capable of turning. It looks like the same black shiny material that was used on the desktop and the keyboard was made out of minus the white keys. Why I call it a storage bank instead of just hard drives is because they're made into the wall and I could see it looks like mini data banks in size that the keyboard and monitor are hooked directly into as one giant piece minus the stool. The monitor, although part of the one piece unit was curved, yet I knew somehow that the monitor was turnable as if to prevent someone from seeing what another person was working on or to where it could be shared and viewed by others. I've never seen anything quite like this before. Not even when I used to watch movies years ago.

Suddenly, I realized this has to belong to the fallen ones, this vast network of computer systems and data banks. Somehow I knew its electrical workings and technology was superior and advanced by many years than what's above ground. That's how they always do things. They only allow advances to be released and controlled by them so their stronghold of mankind is kept secure. I walked further back into the room. I noticed there was another room because I saw more windows but it looked as if the lights were off. The area appeared darker than this room, like it was dark but not fully. Driven by curiosity and the realization that I've been brought here by my lovely Jesus Christ, and until I know exactly why, I'm still going to gather all the information about this place I can in case it's needed for a later time.

I made my way to the various rows of data banks, computers and such like. As I drew nearer to the windows I could see in the far distance lights. I let out a gasp of surprise. This isn't another room I'm looking at from these glass windows. It looks like I'm under the water. I'm at one of the marine kingdom's underwater facilities, but which one, I don't know. I stood transfixed at the watery scene before me showing other buildings in the distance. This location appears to be very large, even massive. I turned quickly from the windows, suddenly feeling in my spirit, in my Holy Ghost knower as I call it to myself, not to stay in one location but to keep moving. I saw a door to my right and knew I was to enter there, which I did so quickly. It's another vast room full of networking computers, data banks, all types of storage drives and units that one would possibly use together and store large quantities of information. Some of these things I don't recognize. This room seems filled with more modern items than the rest I've seen so far.

My attention is caught by a red picture of something on some of the larger data banks fronts that are all still covered by the same dark sage green color. Someone must really like that color, I mused to myself as I made my way closer to see what the red emblem was on these covers. What kind of identification mark was it? When I finally arrived in front of one to look at it closely, I felt the color drain quickly from my face as I looked at the picture before me. The emblem symbol made my mind immediately go to a vision I had in 2023 years ago of macron, the antichrist rising like the great phoenix bird. There before me was a phoenix bird in reds, oranges and yellows. His head is turned to the right, his feathers and wings spread open wide, but on the center of his chest area was the same hand surrounded by the sunburst with the exact duplicate of the sunburst and hand but only smaller set on the larger hand's web area between the thumb and pointer finger. I cried out loud in surprise, "It's the mark of the beast! Antichrist's mark of the beast is on this phoenix bird. This is his beast system network," I exclaimed out loud! I turned quickly around to begin checking others of the units and yes they all have the same phoenix and mark of the beast emblem on them. As I continued further toward the back of the room through the rows and rows of data banks and such like, I stopped about midways. There on the wall above a set of double doors was another giant size emblem of the proud phoenix bird with the mark of the beast upon its chest. "Oh Jesus Christ what do I do now?"

All of a sudden, I heard Holy Ghost Spirit speak softly, yet urgently, "Daughter of Zion, hide yourself. You're about to have company." "What!" I said in surprise. Instead of moving, I froze. I felt myself being physically picked up and swiftly carried to the back row and set down behind one of the large, tall databanks, hiding me completely. I looked around quickly and saw no one. Whether it was the Holy Ghost Spirit, or a Holy Angel of God that moved me, I don't know, but I was so grateful because within a few minutes the double doors opened. I noticed the middle of the door seemed to move as if alive then open fully one to the right the other to the left. They were black in color. Immediately I thought to myself, "Black goo! The graphene! They're made out of this." When the doors were fully opened I saw two very tall, even giant sized people walk into the room. This explained the really tall ceilings and huge doorways and even the data storage banks that were really tall in their height.

I was stunned for a moment when I recognized one of the people as the fallen angel Asbeel, although he's appearing once again in a female form as the queen of the marine kingdom. All the angels were created male so when a fallen one takes on the form of female it is in direct rebellion to Father God who created male and female. In this form he-she has assumed, he-she calls himself Kanjeng Ratu Kidul. Once again his-her face was elaborately made up with makeup with the lips painted red. His-her long dark hair still hangs past the waist. This time he-she has his-her chest covered, whereas the first time I saw the queen she-he was naked from the waist up. He-she is still adorned with much jewelry, gold chains, and bracelets. The queen is the one speaking.

"With all the orders and restrictions from Heaven's Court by the command of that foul Nazarene Son of His, we cannot bring up any more of our actual gen 8G systems for the phoenix network. It's a good thing we already had the gen 8 and even gen 9 series above ground." The man who was as tall as the queen was slender. His sandy hair was cut neat. He replied, "Yes and we have already begun rebuilding the phoenix beast system network for our chosen one to rule the world of mankind above ground and above the waters in the many data centers abroad. But if the holy command stands that we can only keep 10 of the medium sized data centers when the tribulation begins, then He, that filthy, disgusting Son of Heaven could very well cause us to be running on a skeleton crew as He has called it through His praying people. I would like to cut all their throats myself and watch their bodies twitch until they die," he finished saying with pure malice and hatred displayed on his face. I saw a peculiar smile come across the marine kingdom's queen's face. Then he-she said, "Don't worry, the majority of those that belong to Him are weak and can be easily manipulated. Most likely we will get to cut their throats out when the chosen one rules, either by hand or by our guillotines that have been set up already all over the above world of man with many inside the data centers."

The sandy haired man's face relaxed a little as he nodded his head. I noticed from my hiding place, he had very dark eyes as once again a cruel smile crossed his face as he said, "I shall take great joy in every one of their deaths of their useless bodies. What a waste of breathable air, having them on the earth with us," he finished saying with a look of disgust on his face. I saw the left eyebrow of the Marine Queen's face rise as she-he said, "Now Don, they actually lived here on the earth first." Then he-she began laughing loudly, even cruelly at what had been said. The sandy haired man joined in the laughter, and I knew what the queen had meant was the Earth was created for man not the fallen angels to live on, but they had taken over much of it for themselves. I knew now by the queen's words the man was a fallen angel too and not a nephilim.

After the brief shared moment of cruel laughter, the marine queen begins speaking again as one who was in control. "We can no longer take any more of this above ground. The phoenix system will have to run on the 8G network that's already been installed in the chosen one's area as well as others. What we have to do now is ensure that every medium size data center is equipped with the 8G capabilities. Our own network above ground must supersede all the others already in place. This will be more easily done when we release and install what the world has come to know as the quantum Internet that runs on 5G and higher. None of the other systems should supersede 7G on those with this technology, should they prove to be an enemy to our cause at a later time and use it against us."

"I will see to it," the fallen angel Don said in reply to the marine queen's instructions. He looked at him-her for a moment then asked, "Are we still moving more of the guillotines than medium sized data centers since we don't know which 10 that the God of Heaven's Son is going to allow us to keep?" An angry look came across the fallen angel Asbeel's face who had currently taken on the shape of the queen of the marine kingdom. Finally he-she said, "Yes, yes but focus on stocking the ones already built. It's reported that the foul, cuss, cuss of Heaven, His Son, has already chosen the 10 data centers we're going to be able to keep, but He's not telling us. So we know from this they're going to be those already built." The sandy haired fallen angel looked intently at the other, then said, "He is like His Father. He knows all things of the past, present and the future. What is to say out of the 10 data centers He has selected, it's not one in the future that's not built yet?" The queen looked at him intensely then said in reply, "That's something we won't know until the time arrives. So if you have a better solution, then speak up! He-she spoke in the voice of authority. "No, no, I don't," he replied.

The queen responded, "Then until we know, we shall continue preparing the medium sized data centers and build more. If we continue to build the data centers, even though we know 10 is all that we shall be able to keep, it should still give us the advantage and capability, besides storing the acquired water for later use, to have above ground the phoenix beast system network readily available when we know the darkness is finally coming. At this time we will transfer the technology, drives, units via the internet, by carriers, and however else available to increase our coverage. We can no longer count on the bunkers, facilities, or any locations underwater or underground. They shall soon be emptied and off limits except what Heaven allows accessed and only with the Heavenly escort. We still have our islands above the water we can use," he-she finished saying in a firm voice.

I saw the man grimace and I knew something had crossed his mind. He cleared his throat and finally said, "That is if they are still above water and not sunk in the big earthquake that occurs foretold in the Scripture of Truth in the Book of Revelation." I saw the marine queen's eyes narrow sharply as she paused as if thinking for a moment until finally she said, "This is true. We may not be able to count on them. But prophecy has foretold Atlantis would rise again and this has been confirmed to us by the lightbringer, lucifer himself. Send orders to Charletonne (char-la-ton-ney) to have prepared a portable backup system of the phoenix network with the whole network's information and infrastructure for Atlantis. He, the lightbearer, will want to rule from the island once again."

"Will he still call the name of the island Atlantis," the man asked, "or the one it went by that's written about in the Scripture of Truth?" He asked. "I'm not sure," he-she replied, "but since Astana is going to be taken from us as well, we need to be prepared for control to be installed easily on the island with a similar system for the chosen one once it rises again. It is through this phoenix beast system that the collective hive that's needed during the chosen one's rule, is possible to run without disruptions," the queen finished saying. "Alright," the man named Don said then asked, "what time do you want me to set the meeting up for and where do you want it held?" "We will hold it in Astana. Make the arrangements for 6 hours from now. That will give us time to finish putting together the rest of the information. Until the actual tribulation begins we can still use our phoenix system network below ground and below the waters. We cannot take any of this with us," the marine queen said with arms spread out toward the room full of data storage banks, computers, and such like, "but then," she smiled another cruel smile as she finished saying, "what we managed to get above to the world of man before the orders came down from Heaven shall still allow us an iron control over mankind when the chosen one rules."

I heard several slight beeping noises begin to sound in some of the data bank units. This apparently caught the attention of the two fallen angels as well, because I heard the man named Don say as he looked at the area of data banks and units where the sounds had come from, "The updates are finishing. We can pull the information now." "Good," the queen replied, "have it done! I saw them both turn back toward the door. But then moments later it opened again and they left the room. I stayed where I was hiding behind the tall data system as I thought about what just happened. This is the antichrist's beast system. I am looking at the actual technology and system and it's ready. It's already above ground. "Jesus Christ," I said quickly out loud then asked, "am I understanding all this correctly? This vast phoenix network system with its 8G technology is what's going to be used for the actual beast system and mark of the beast for antichrist's rule. That's also why the phoenix system network has a picture of the mark of the beast upon the phoenix's chest."

I finally heard the beautiful voice of my lovely Jesus Christ speak to me in reply, "Yes Daughter of Mine, you do and it is." "Okay," I said. I looked around one more time at the room full of this phoenix network system for antichrist, the man of sin's rule, then said, "They called it the phoenix system, the phoenix network down here, but above ground it going to be used with the actual quantum internet they're switching over to sometime after the 3 days of darkness is over."

Is this correct?" "Yes and no," came His swift reply. "Yes and no, what kind of reply is that? What do you mean by that, Jesus Christ my Love?" I asked Him earnestly. I heard Him say softly, "What I mean, Daughter of Mine is what your world calls the quantum internet and the quantum computers systems and technology are all part of the phoenix system and network already in place in man's world that has been taken from below ground and below the waters."

"Oh, I see, yes, I understand. Thank You," I said. I was silent and thoughtful for a moment and then asked, "Why did they call it the phoenix system? What made them choose that name? How does it relate to antichrist? I remember the vision you gave me about macron as the antichrist rising like the phoenix bird. What's the connection?" I asked my lovely Jesus Christ. "Daughter of Mine, follow the trail. You know him as the sun king, the sun god ra, and apollo and the phoenix bird. They're all connected together. All relate to the sun and fire which is also representative of the mark of the beast and antichrist's chosen symbol."

"Remember Daughter of Mine, it is the dragon, lucifer that gives the antichrist, the phoenix, his power. How does he relate to antichrist, the man of sin as the phoenix with him as the dragon? For that information of symbolism, Daughter, go back to the world of man's mythology in East Asia and you will find the belief that's embedded deep still today in lucifer's dark kingdom. In this you will find the relationship between the dragon and the phoenix." "I will Lord Jesus Christ, with Your help." I heard Him reply, "My help is given, little Daughter of Mine." With these final words He spoke, I found myself once again in the room I'm currently staying in.

I begin praying in His Name and then begin researching, asking Holy Ghost Spirit to lead my way. This is what I found.

In East Asia's mythology, the phoenix (fenghuang) and the dragon (long) are related as the ultimate yin and yang when together representing a cosmic balance of complementary offices, rather than opposing enemies.

The dragon represents the Yang masculine symbol of power and strength. While the phoenix is the yin symbol and is feminine and symbolizes fire and rebirth. When together in East Asia and when symbolic of their rulers in imperial tradition the dragon symbolizes the emperor while the phoenix the empress being joined in marriage. When they are together it is symbolic of marriage between the two the dragon and Phoenix and signifies what it was. A balanced partnership. So what is symbolized here between antichrist as the phoenix and lucifer the dragon is a covenant union, a partnership of opposites mortal enemies, man and fallen angel now united together in one cause.
